EVENING SESSION OF INSTITUTE TO BE DISCONTINUED

Effort To Have Sessions Prior To School Opening In Fall Is Defeated By Teachers.

After considerable discussion, a recommendation of the committee of resolutions that institute be held before the opening of the school year was voted down this morning by teachers at the seventy-third annual session which closed at noon at the Gettysburg high school auditorium.

Teachers in favor of the recommendation pointed out that, by holding institute before schools opened, the "break" in the regular school year would be eliminated.

A recommendation that evening entertainments of institute be discontinued was passed. The committee on resolutions also presented recommendations that County Superintendent W. Raymond Shank and his assistant, J. F. Slaybaugh, be complimented for their efforts "in providing a helpful and interesting program, and also the several instructors for their inspiring and helpful addresses."

Plan For Library

The resolution committee's recommendation that a committee of five teachers be appointed by the county superintendent to formulate plans for the establishment of a professional library for teachers of Adams county was passed.

Resolutions urging 100 per cent enrollment of teachers in Adams county in the National educational association and that the money used for evening entertainments be used to help pay the enrollment fees in the N. E. A. were passed.

It was also recommended and passed that delegates to the N. E. A. be elected by the various convention districts and to this end "we instruct our delegates to the P. S. E. A. convention at Lancaster to work for this desirable change."

The recommendation that the expenses of the delegates to the annual meeting of the P. S. E. A. be paid out of the institute fund at the rate of $3 per person per day in addition to the railroad fare was passed.

The committee on resolutions comprised Charles I. Raffensperger, principal of the Biglerville schools, chairman; Guile W. Lefever, Paul E. King, Mary R. Sterner, J. Warren Martin, Ward B. Rice, G. Howard Danner, Elizabeth B. Rummel, Dewey E. McCauslin and Gladys V. Russell.

At a business session of institute this morning delegates and alternates to the annual sessions of the Pennsylvania State Educational association convention at Lancaster were named. The delegates elected were: C. P. Keefer, New Oxford, and Miss Ruth I. McIlhenny, Gettysburg. Alternates were Miss Alma Henry, Fairfield, and Mrs. Donald Lower, Brysonia.

Assistant Superintendent Slaybaugh also reported on field day activities during the forenoon.

The Rev. F. L. Stine, pastor of the Gettysburg United Brethren church, was in charge of the opening devotionals today.

The only address this morning was that of Dr. Fadra Holmes Wilson, of California, this state, whose talks have been the subject of much favorable comment among the teachers at institute. She spoke on the subject "The Human Teacher" at this morning's closing session.

TWO TRAPPERS INJURED WITH THEIR OWN GUNS

Littlestown Boys Accidentally Shot After Trapping: Neither Is Serious.

Two Littlestown youths were injured when shot by their own guns while trapping for rodents during the last few days.

George Hanrahan, 14, son of Mrs. William Noel, of that place, received a bullet wound in his thigh when the revolver he carried, while attending his traps, was accidentally discharged, the pellet entering the fleshy part of his leg. Dr. H. S. Crouse, of Littlestown, removed the bullet.

When he grabbed his gun which had started to fall from its resting place on the porch of his home, Lewis Reaver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Reaver, near Littlestown, was shot through the hand when the cartridge in the gun exploded. The bullet pierced his hand, shattering one of the small bones. The injury was dressed by Doctor Crouse. Reaver had just returned from an inspection of his traps and had leaned his rifle against the side of his home when the accident occurred.

BEALES WILL IS PROBATED, WIDOW IS GIVEN $10,000

Trust Funds Are Established For Each Of Six Children; Property To Be Sold.

Disposing of an estate, valued in excess of $50,000, the will of C. William Beales, prominent in the business, political and social life of Gettysburg and Adams county for more than a quarter of a century, was entered to probate in the office of C. G. Taughinbaugh, register and recorder, today.

Mr. Beales, proprietor of the People's drug store since 1904, died suddenly at his home on Carlisle street, Monday evening, and was buried Thursday morning.

The will, written December 23, 1925, directs that all real and personal property owned, by Mr. Beales, be sold as soon as possible after his death. Real estate, owned by Mr. Beales and valued at $11,000, includes the Beales home on Carlisle street and a summer cottage at Marsh Creek Heights. His personal property includes the stock and fixtures of the People's drug store, Baltimore street, located in the McPherson building.

By the terms of the will, Mrs. E. Mae Beales, the widow, is to receive $10,000 outright. Charles A. Beales and William A. Beales, Mr. Beales' two sons, are each to receive the interest semi-annually from two $5,000 trust funds to be established for them at the Gettysburg national bank. Upon their reaching the age of 30 years, each son is to receive the full amount of his legacy.

Trust funds, also of $5,000 each, are established at the same bank for each of Mr. Beales' four daughters, Misses Helen L. Marion W., Kathryn M. and Margaret A. Beales, by the will. The daughters are to receive the interest semi-annually from their respective trust funds, and at their deaths, the full amounts of the legacies are to be given to their children.

The net proceeds from the sale of the remainder of the real and personal property of the estate is to be divided in equal shares among the six children.

Sums of $200 each are bequeathed to the York Springs and Mt. Joy cemeteries for the care and upkeep of the graves of Mr. Beales' and Mrs. Beales' parents, respectively.

The will names Mrs. E. Mae Beales and Attorney J. Donald Swope as the executors.

STORE OPENING IS HUGE SUCCESS

More Than 400 Attend Formal Opening of Blocher's New Jewelry Store.

More than 400 visitors attended the formal opening of Blocher's new jewelry store, 25 Chambersburg street, Thursday evening.

Before the doors opened at 7:30 o'clock a small group had gathered outside, and waited for more than half an hour, in a heavy rain. When the doors opened there was a steady arrival of friends and patrons, many of whom were from neighboring communities.

Fellow merchants of Mr. Blocher sent floral tributes commemorating the opening of the new home and the observance of their fortieth anniversary, while the visitors congratulated Mr. Blocher upon the fine modern store room.

The opening was far above the expectations of the owner. The heavy downpour of rain during the afternoon threatened to keep away a large crowd, but before the doors opened, the deluge slackened sufficiently to permit many to drive from neighboring communities and from the rural districts.

The souvenirs for the ladies were in the nature of hand-painted silk handkerchiefs, neatly put up in small boxes. Every visitor was asked to sign his or her name to a card. The cards are being placed in a large box. Monday morning three judges will draw two cards from the box. The card first drawn with a lady's name on, will be adjudged the winner of a lady's wrist watch. The same will pertain to a man's wrist watch. The winners will be announced Monday evening.

The opening continues this evening, Saturday afternoon and Saturday evening.

Double Heater like new, other stoves, dressers, beds, chairs, and other furniture at Wentz's sale, Saturday.

Heavy-Weight Bunny Bagged By Countian

While statistics concerning the average weight of cotton tails are conspicuous by their absence, J. O. Gardner, of York Springs, believes that the bunny which he killed while hunting near the farm of the late Senator William Martin recently is decidedly in the heavy-weight division. Mr. Gardner with several of his friends as hunting companions, Postmaster H. M. Gardner, of York Springs; Rene Tanger, Isaac Tanger and Clarence Tanger, bagged 11 pheasants, 2 gray squirrels and 3 rabbits, and the one shot by Mr. Gardner tipped the scales at four and three-quarter pounds.

Urge Hunters To Use Care Handling Guns

In view of the high mortality rate among hunters in Pennsylvania this year, John B. Truman, executive secretary of the state game commission, has urged the game protectors in each of the counties to impress upon the hunters and sportsmen the necessity of careful handling of guns.

According to a letter received by Leo Bushman, state game protector, here, 28 persons have been killed and 113 wounded in the state during the present hunting season. Of the persons killed 17 were self-inflicted and 11 inflicted by other hunters. Of the persons wounded 20 were self-inflicted and 93 inflicted by others.

Another matter which was brought to the attention of Mr. Bushman was the attempted intimidation of farmers who have posted their land against hunting by hunters from the cities and towns. According to Mr. Truman's letter several farmers have been threatened and even assaulted by hunters, who desire to kill game on lands which have been posted.

While no cases of this kind have been reported to Mr. Bushman he stated today that if any complaint is made by farmers the guilty parties will be punished to the fullest extent of the law.

Mr. Bushman urged the farmers to take the license numbers of hunters who threaten them and report the numbers to him and he will take action against him.

PLAINTIFFS IN ACCIDENT CASES GIVEN DAMAGES

Directed Verdicts Rendered in Several Suits Brought Before Court This Morning.

After a brief domestic relations session this morning, court was adjourned until 9:30 o'clock Saturday morning when sentences will be meted out to defendants who have entered pleas of guilty with District Attorney John P. Butt.

The case of the commonwealth against Charles Pepple, Table Rock, in which George Harman, neighbor of Pepple, was the prosecutor, was non-suited by Judge D. P. McPherson in court, Thursday afternoon. The case, based on a line fence dispute, did not come within the jurisdiction of the criminal court, but was rather a matter in trespass for the civil court, Judge McPherson said.

Asks Verdict Set Aside

Before discharging the jurors in the case, however, the court asked them to dispose of the costs. After a brief deliberation, the jury divided the costs between Pepple and Harman, whereupon Attorney William Hersh, counsel for Pepple, protested, and filed a motion to set aside the verdict. The costs will be about $50, Mr. Hersh said.

A jury was then drawn to give directed verdicts in three civil actions, in which agreements had been reached by opposing counsel.

In the civil suit brought by the Gilbert apple products' company, a corporation, against W. S. Adams, the court directed that a verdict in favor of the plaintiff in the sum of $608.75 be rendered.

3 Get Damages

In the case of Myrna E. Raffensperger in her own right; Eva Mae Raffensperger, a minor, by her father and next friend, and by George A. Raffensperger, in his own right, against the Western Maryland railway company, the court directed that a verdict of $800 be given to the plaintiffs, to be divided as follows: Myrna Raffensperger, $600; Eva Mae Raffensperger, $150, and George Raffensperger, $150.

This case grew out of an accident on North Stratton street, December 17, 1926, when a Western Maryland freight train backed into an automobile in which Miss Myrna Raffensperger and her sister, Miss Eva Mae Raffensperger, were riding.

EVENING SESSIONS OF INSTITUTE TO BE DISCONTINUED

Dr. F. W. Wright, of Boston, deputy commissioner of education in Massachusetts, gave a challenging address on "Reforms and Reformers" Thursday. He stressed the fact that pupils should participate more in school activities, and urged the adoption of the Kilpatrick project method of instruction.

Mrs. Wilson's talk on "The Ethical Value of Pictures" was one of the most inspiring talks ever heard at any recent session of institute.

The conference periods for the teachers of the various grades were an important part of institute, because the practical problems of teachers were discussed. Prof. H. B. Smith, of the educational department of Gettysburg college, led three of the groups.

Yodlers Pleased

Before the high school section, he urged the use of the project method of teaching as outlined by Doctor Wright, citing successful projects conducted by various high schools. After pointing out that 70 per cent of the pupils in grade schools never go to high school, Mr. Smith said it was the duty of every teacher to see that every child learns to enjoy reading. To accomplish this, he said, it is necessary for the teachers to "sell" interesting books and stories to the children. The need of more and better books in school rooms and libraries was stressed by the speaker.

The Tyrolean Yodlers pleased a large audience Thursday evening with a diversified program of vocal and instrumental music. "The Mol-lusc," a play, presented Wednesday evening, drew one of the largest crowds ever present for an evening entertainment at institute.

Suggestions and plans for expediting the handling of Christmas mail are contained in a statement issued by Postmaster John Eckert, in accordance with the campaign conducted by the postoffice department. The statement deals principally with business houses, and is timely, inasmuch as the volume of the mails will soon be increased due to approach of the Christmas season.

The statement follows: "This office is devising plans and perfecting its organization with a view to the smooth and expeditious handling of the Christmas mail. It is contemplated that all mail, both incoming and outgoing, shall be handled immediately as received, and complete clean up be made daily, thus precluding the possibility of any congestion or delay, and in this connection I am requesting the assistance and cooperation of the public, in an early mailing campaign.

"Heretofore calendars, catalogues, etc., have been mailed at, or near Christmas when clerks and carriers were already overloaded with the regular Christmas mail. In order to avoid the congested condition formerly obtaining in offices, the first assistant postmaster-general has announced through the Postal Bulletin that 'large advertisers should be requested to withhold heavy mailing of certain matter, such as catalogues, calendars, etc., during the period from December 10 to January 1. Calendars should be mailed sufficiently in advance of December 10 to permit delivery before that date.'

"As an aid to the shop and mail early campaign all banks conducting Christmas savings clubs should be urged to send out checks not later than between December 1 and 5. In doing this postmasters should explain fully the campaign of the department and business men for early shopping and early mailings, the great advantages of this practice, etc., and solicit the hearty cooperation of the banks."

EXPECT TO CLEAR VARE PROBE SOON

Senator Curtis Says Seating of Two Senators Will be Completed by Christmas.

Washington, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Disposition of the contest over the seat of Senator Smith, of Illinois, and Senator Vare, of Pennsylvania, both Republicans, by the Christmas holidays is planned by senate leaders.

Senator Curtis, of Kansas, the Republican leader, wants congress in a position to adjourn by the opening of the national party convention next June and to that end he is hoping for early action on the tax reduction bill as well as the Smith-Vare case.

The tax measure which is promised the senate before the holidays by the house can be disposed of, Senator Curtis believes, by February and certainly before March 15 when first quarterly income tax payments on incomes of this calendar year are due.

WASHINGTON IS STORM CENTER

Tornado Caused Considerable Damage in National Capital; 1 Dead, 200 Injured.

Washington, Nov. 18.—(AP)—The national capital turned today to the task of bringing order out of the tangle of tornado ruined wreckage in the eastern section of the city.

Sweeping out of the south on the wings of a 53 mile gale, the devastating twister left a swath of destruction late yesterday from Alexandria, Va., to Hyattsville, Md.

It unroofed houses, felled trees, overturned automobiles and tore down transmission wires. A negro woman was struck and killed by lightning. More than 200 were injured and property damage was estimated at several million dollars in Washington alone.

The federal and municipal governments and the Red Cross were quick to meet the situation. The war department volunteered the services of all its forces in the vicinity and the Red Cross dispatched its relief workers to the scene and the local authorities mobilized police and firemen for service in the stricken area.

Mother Of Babe Month Old, Bandit

New York, Nov. 18.—(AP)—A young bobbed haired woman, mother of a baby a month old, was arrested today with two men on charges of robbing a Brooklyn delicatessen store. The men told police they stole to provide food for her and the infant.

The woman, Frances Marasco, drove the men away from the store in an automobile after the robbery, police said. She had a revolver concealed in her dress.

STOCK REPORT

New York, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Confused price movements characterized the opening of today's stock market. The question of price apparently did not cut much figure in the demand for certain stocks judging by the brisk manner in which they rose around noon on light buying.

PROSECUTE DRY CRUSADER

Pittsburgh, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Prosecution of William L. King, deposed vice crusader, and two of his former investigators, Abe Weinberg and Sol Rosenberg, was ordered by the district attorney today.

Million Disaster Victims Aided by Red Cross in Year of Great Calamities

NEARLY a million persons, victims of 77 disasters, have received assistance from the American Red Cross during the past year.

On an average of every five days this country suffered a disaster of sufficient magnitude to bring the Red Cross into action. The amount of money the organization spent in meeting these emergencies is greater than the budgets of twenty-six states, while only six cities in the country have a population larger than the number of disaster sufferers assisted.

Floods raging over thousands of miles, fires destroying whole villages, tornadoes and hurricanes sweeping over entire states, and death dealing explosions combined to make the year one of unprecedented calamities.

The outstanding disaster of the year was the Mississippi Valley flood, where the organization assisted more than 607,000 persons during the emergency period, and is still carrying on extensive reconstruction work. Already rehabilitation aid has been given to nearly 500,000 persons. After rescuing those in danger from levees and house tops, the refugee population was fed, clothed and sheltered in 149 refugee camps. As these people returned to their homes they were supplied with live stock, seed and farm implements, while buildings damaged or destroyed by the flood were replaced. In this disaster the Red Cross is expending a relief fund in excess of $17,000,000. Red Cross leaders state that in carrying responsibilities in the field of disaster relief has necessitated a larger membership. The organization, headed by President Coolidge, has set 5,000,000 members as its goal for this year's Roll Call, which will be held throughout the nation between Armistice Day and Thanksgiving.

SYNOPSIS
The broad acres of Don Hernandez Vasquez and his beautiful granddaughter Dolores are coveted by Buckwell, San Francisco boss. His lawyer, Brandon, fails to induce Vasquez to sell. Brandon's nephew, Terry, falls in love with Dolores. Buckwell plans to void Vasquez land grant. Terry warns Vasquez and offers aid. Vasquez scents a trap and tells him Dolores must marry young Spaniard. He is broken, Terry leaves without seeing Dolores and tries to forget her by a wild night alone. Barbary Coast. Dolores is hurt by Terry's action, but swallows pride and seeks aid in saving grant. She finds him on drunken party and returns home disillusioned. Buckwell witnesses her visit and is intrigued.

And so on the next afternoon it was two objects, the thought of a grafting party—through attainment of the property, by purchase or otherwise—and a keen desire to meet Dolores, the lovely and spirited belle of the hacienda; that brought him, immaculately dressed as usual, to the gates of the old Vasquez estate.

As he sauntered towards the ruins of the old mission his eyes lighted with satisfaction as they beheld the rolling hills and broad acres on either side. This valuable property would soon be his; other speculators wanted it but he would be the lucky one. Over the chapel door, moss covered and half obliterated, his roving eye caught the Vasquez crest and motto, "A Vasquez avenges a Vasquez," and his lips curled contemptuously at this symbol of useless sentiment and emotion.

Turning to go toward the house, he stopped abruptly. In the distance

Falling on his knees he assumed an attitude of devout worship.

He noticed Dolores and her grandfather coming toward the mission. Vasquez wore a shawl and leaned heavily on his cane as Dolores helped him along. Buckwell's wily brain was seized with an idea. Hastily crumpling beneath the heel of his boot the cigar he had been puffing so contently, he slipped into the mission and waited for them to approach.

The old man walked slowly. The grief and trouble of the past two days had aged him considerably. The sight of his broad acres seemed to torture him by their association with the past. He shook his head sadly as he walked.

Dolores was silent and grave, too. The disillusionment and horrible memories of the previous night lay heavily on her mind. She sighed in remembrance and thanked heaven that her grandfather had no inkling of where she had been. As Buckwell sensed them passing the mission door he hastily advanced to the altar and falling to his knees assumed an attitude of devout worship. Keenly alert to each round of their footsteps he was fully aware that he had been discovered. Silently he waited with bowed head as they drew near and stopped just behind him. Then rising, apparently from prayer, as if in ignorance of their presence, he started as he saw them watching him curiously.

"I trust you will pardon this intrusion," he said apologetically, bowing low, "but I could not resist a prayer in this ancient sanctuary. It seems so like a breath from the sacred past."

Vasquez nodded warmly at this appreciation of his beloved mission.

Smiling first at him and then at Dolores, Buckwell continued, "I hope, with your permission, I may come again and often," he paused, waiting for the effect of his words.

The old man's smile faded and was replaced with a look of deep sadness. He glanced furtively about before replying, "I am afraid this may be your last visit—graffing politicians from the city threaten to seize our estate—and these old walls will be crushed under the merciless wheels of progress."

Buckwell stared from one to the other in amazement. His indignation was superb.

"Do you mean to say that they threaten to demolish this glorious monument to the very traditions that made our country what it is?" He paused and looked at Dolores as if to get her confirmation to her grandfather's statement.

She nodded in agreement, her eyes shining in response to his words. "They threaten to declare void the old Spanish grant under which our ancestors held this land for more than one hundred years," she supplied with indignation.

Buckwell looked at her earnestly and sympathetically, then placing his hand gently on Vasquez's arm he said, "I, myself, am not without some influence in the city. I can find out who is behind this outrage. I promise—for the sake of what this old mission represents—that I will save your estate."

The stranger's manner and words gave them new courage and Dolores ventured to say, "You seem to have come in answer to a wish—I threw a rose into the wishing well this morning and wished that someone true and fine would be sent to help us."

"No desire of yours should ever go ungratified," he complimented with just the right amount of mature and distant dignity. "I trust I may have the privilege of serving you often."

Dolores looked at her grandfather and her eyes signalled "Isn't he nice?" His answer "Yes, my child, he is kind."

How cruel it was that they should have been so deluded and their faith so played with by the very man who was causing all the heartache and worry!

"We would appreciate anything you can do—I am at a loss as to what our next step should be," volunteered Vasquez, pitifully.

"In order to understand the situation," said Buckwell, assuming a more businesslike air, "I would like to examine your grant—merely to see if it was properly filed after the American Occupation."

"Certainly, Señor," acquiesced Vasquez, eager to do all in his power to assist, "come into the house and we can go into the matter thoroughly. With a sweeping gesture he indicated the way, but the strain of worry and excitement had drained his strength. Tottering uncertainly, he almost fell.

"Oh, grandfather!" cried Dolores, steadying him with one arm around his waist.

"I am all right—now!" he gasped, but one hand fluttered at his heart and Dolores knew he was just being brave.

"Let's sit down," she suggested cheerfully.

"No, No!" the old man insisted. "I want to get this matter settled as soon as possible," and he continued along the path with dragging feet.

Dolores exchanged a worried look with Buckwell behind her grandfather's back and they moved cautiously along on either side, ready to catch him if he needed assistance.

When they finally reached the living room Vasquez sank wearily into a great armchair and closed his eyes. "Dolores," he called, unaware that she was kneeling by his side until she covered his nervous hands with hers. "Ah, yes, my child, bring the strong box in—you know where it is."

"Yes, grandfather, dear," she responded quickly to his bidding.

In a moment she returned to the room carrying a handsomely carved box of Spanish design. Pausing before old Vasquez for instructions she found that he was asleep.

"I hate to waken him," she whispered across the intervening space to Buckwell, "he is so exhausted."

"Yet it may be disastrous to lose more time," supplied Buckwell craftily, in sotto voice.

"Couldn't you look at the papers without grandfather?" asked Dolores, innocently. "I know how to open the box."

"Why—yes, I suppose I could," admitted Buckwell with apparent reluctance. But he had reached Dolores's side at the table before she opened the box and, as if he had devoted enough time to being polite he reached in and took out the grant papers.

"Aren't they perfectly legal?" inquired Dolores, waiting anxiously for his opinion, as he hastily scanned each sheet.

Buckwell laughed, softly to keep from wakening Vasquez. "I am not expert enough in such matters to tell, but I shall be very happy to have my lawyer go over them for you."

"It does not seem right to put you to so much trouble," Dolores had a habit of talking with her eyes as well as her lips, and Buckwell found it diverting to watch her. It was a new role for him to play protector to a lovely damsel in distress and he enjoyed it to the utmost.

Happenings of Days Gone by as Chronicled in The Star and Sentinel and The Gettysburg Times, the Files Reveal.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

Local Miscellany.—About 475 came from Carlisle to attend the Dickinson game Saturday.

Tuesday, November 19th, is the 49th anniversary of the dedication of the National cemetery grounds at Gettysburg, when President Lincoln delivered his famous speech. It is recalled by some of the older residents that he attended a service in the Presbyterian church the evening previous.

Most delightful fall weather.

The teachers had a fine week for their annual institute.

Turkeys are selling for 17 cents a pound wholesale.

Gettysburg deer hunters have been rather lucky this season. Those who have bagged deer are Harry Broom, James McIlhenny and George Stroup.

The children of the primary department of the Methodist Episcopal church were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Remmel on Saturday afternoon in honor of their daughter, Dorothy, who received many gifts during the day which are much appreciated.

Sidelights on the Parade.—A number of homes in town were beautifully illuminated.

Frank Slonaker's little girl drove her pony hitched to a small wagon on which was the stuffed figure of an elephant with his toes turned up. It was a good one.

"Anyhow, Mr. Smarty Compiler, your parade was not as big as Farmers' Day."

The Ice and Storage company had a tastefully arranged boat that was popular with the boys who got within range. It distributed samples of ice cream.

It must have cost a mighty effort but Postmaster Beales' home was one of the best illuminations in town.

One of the cleverest boats was the "Compiler" incubator hatching Democratic roosters.

Charlie Tate had one of the very best getups of the evening. He had a miscellaneous lot of household goods in and hanging to his surney, his monkey included. A sign on the top read: "No use monkeying, I must go."

Good Football Game.—Gettysburg Surprises Dickinson and Loses by only 7 Points.—With one of the largest crowds that ever assembled on Nixon field present, Gettysburg college football team went down to defeat before the strong Dickinson aggregation by the score of 20-13, Saturday, November 16.

The Gettysburg team was without a single star for every man played the game his best. Captain Dunn was easily the star for Dickinson and their victory was due to a great extent to his clever dodging and open field running. Goldstein also played well. The opponents could gain but little through Gettysburg's line, while in the second half the local team tore big gaps in Dickinson's defense.

The G. A. R. Annual Banquet.—On Wednesday at noon the annual banquet of Corporal Skelly post No. 9 was held in the hall on East Middle street. The banquet room was beautifully decorated with bunting and flags. At one time the post numbered about one hundred and sixty members but through deaths and changes, the membership has been reduced to eighty-eight.

The officers now in charge are: Commander, William A. McIlhenny; adjutant, Calvin Hamilton, and quartermaster, Hanson W. Lightner, who has efficiently filled that office for thirteen years.

After dinner a considerable time was spent socially in the post room and with Comrade Pitzer at the organ, a number of good old patriotic songs were sung, and much enjoyed by all present. Later Comrade Pitzer took the violin and accompanied by Comrade Smith, who "manipulated the bones" delightfully contributed largely to the entertainment.

Runaway.—A runaway resulted Saturday morning about nine o'clock when Edward Wolf's automobile ran into the two horse wagon of George W. Spangler, driven by Walter Starnier. The wagon was coming out of Liberty street, when the automobile struck it. The horses bolted, throwing Mr. Starnier out, and ran several hundred yards before the loose tongue veered them into a surrey standing along the street. Both animals were thrown, becoming entangled with the other team and much difficulty was experienced in getting them loose.

The wagon was slightly damaged and one of the horses badly cut about the leg. The surrey which they ran into was pretty well battered up.

THE LESSER SPLENDORS

Take it for what it's worth. I need A line or two of truth today. What's bigger than an honest deed Which drives one touch of care away?

What's greater than a kindly word By which a faltering heart is stirred? Is all success in silver told? Is fame the only proof of worth?

And is the stout heart and the bold All that is recognized on earth? When one in care or sorrow stands, Does he not sigh for gentle hands?

Is it not something to have stood Undaunted at a dismal post, Doing the very best you could To serve the ones you love the most?

Are not the humbler heroes here As brave as those the people cheer? Not all the courage shines afar, Not all the great souls come to fame;

As brave the lesser toilers are As those who win the world's acclaim. True greatness in an hour of need May be a very simple deed.

"Goodness gracious!" exclaimed the little rabbit as Peter Pig remarked that pigs are naturally very clean animals. "I always thought pigs were very dirty!"

"If farmers would be careful to give their pigs nice clean pens and large yards in which to live, they would be surprised to see how clean the pigs would keep themselves."

"You don't mean it!" cried the astonished little bunny.

"A pig loves to be washed and brushed, and is naturally so fond of cleanliness that it takes great pains never to soil its bed provided it is given clean straw to lie on and a good sized yard. Like its wild ancestors, it loves a cool, mud bath. It has inherited this love of wallowing from its ancestors, who, like the buffalo, were wont to wallow in mud holes in order to cover themselves with a thick coating of mud to keep their skin protected from flies and gnats."

"I wish somebody would tell all owners of pigs what you've explained to me," sighed the little rabbit.

"The trouble is that while my wild ancestors made use of the many forest pools in which they could bathe, today the poor barnyard pig must be content with a filthy mud hole," went on Peter Pig. "If he were at large he would go to a pool of water and wallow in clean mud. This he would much prefer. Therefore, it is not his fault, but that of his owner, if the poor pig must make the best of his dirty sty."

"You have a nice time in your clean little house and big yard," said the little rabbit.

"Indeed I do, and when the Kind Farmer, as he often does, allows me to roam about in the woodland, I have a fine time digging up roots and things growing under ground with my strong snout. And when the autumn comes around, I feed on acorns to my heart's content. Yes, I'm very fond of acorns. After a good meal, I lie down on my side and sleep."

"I'm trying to remember all you say," suddenly cried the little bunny. "You know, Peter Pig, that Professor Jim Crow has offered a prize to the scholar who knows the most about the habits of animals."

"Going to try to win it?" asked the old pig, with a smile.

"Yes, I am," cried the bunny boy. "What else do you know, Mr. Pig? Tell me more and more."

"Have you ever seen a pig with a ring through his nose?" asked Peter Pig, with a grin.

"No, I never did," answered the little rabbit.

"Well, I have," replied Peter Pig. "A ring is put through a pig's nose to keep him from ploughing up the earth with his snout, for if he should once get into a cultivated field, he will ruin the crop. But a kind farmer sees to it that now and then his pigs are turned loose in a wooded tract where there are nut bearing trees, such as oaks, the acorns of which are well liked by pigs."

"Doesn't the ring hurt?" asked the little bunny.

"When it's forced through his nose, of course it does," answered the old pig. "But this is seldom done nowadays. A farmer usually has more sense than to let his pigs roam on land which is not well fenced and suitable for them. Now, that's all I know, or can remember, about the habits of pigs. But I know an interesting story about a little pig that ran away from home. Would you like to hear it?"

And in the next story you shall hear what of this little pig's adventure.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

CITY COURTESY

CITIES are certainly interesting. During the past few months I have visited something like 50 cities.

Cities have a personality that is quite distinctive. But that personality is but the shadow of the personality and soul of those who make up its flesh and blood—the people who are the town.

I have gone into many towns where they didn't seem to care who I was, where I came from, or whether I should ever choose to come again.

But there are towns that I love to go to again and again. They make you feel at home when you come. San Antonio, Houston and Dallas in Texas are some of these towns. So are Detroit, Michigan; New Orleans, La., and Tacoma, Washington. I feel at home in these places.

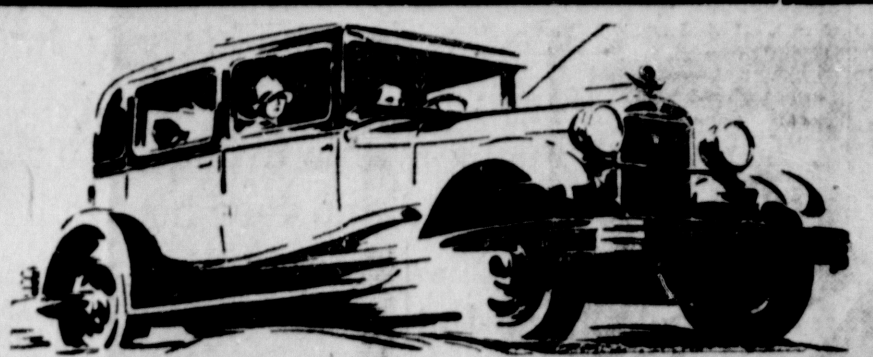

The other day I had another town added to my list—Cumberland, Maryland. I drove into the town and was looking for a place to park my car. From somewhere a man sprang. "Over there is a place, sir," he said. And then another man stepped up and asked me if he couldn't be of some help in giving me information about the town. "Our policemen," he said, "are very thoughtful to strangers. They do not disturb them, even though they do things that they won't stand for from the people of the town." Remarkable policemen, I thought!

And then this man invited me to attend the Rotary luncheon that day! I went into another town, which I shall not name, and there violated a traffic law, unknowingly, of course. The officer was very rude and made me feel like a criminal just out on furlough. I was glad when I reached the next town!

In Memphis, Tennessee, a local newspaper has rented space on a prominent street where it welcomes strangers to come in for any information they may desire—and this without charge of any sort. Many Commercial Clubs do this, but their offices are usually in some high building and difficult to find.

Traffic men, especially, should always reflect the good will of the city in which they serve. It is good to say that they usually do.

City courtesy is the best investment a city can make—and it costs nothing in money.

BIRGER, DEFIANT GANGSTER CHIEF, FACES NOOSE ALONE; FOLLOWERS ARE SCATTERED

HE CAME INTO PROMINENCE IN SOUTHERN ILL. WHEN HE SHOT IT OUT WITH WHITEY DOERING. HIS GANG WENT ABOUT IN ARMORED CARS PILLAGING, BURNING, ROBBERING AND KILLING. SENTENCED TO HANG FOR THE MURDER OF THE MAYOR OF WEST CITY ILL. BIRGER REFUSED SPIRITUAL COMFORT AND SYMPATHY.

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch
BENTON, Ill.—The army that stood by Charlie Birger in his defiance of the law in Williamson county has left him as rats leave a sinking ship.

With the shadow of death hovering near as the famed gangster leader passes his few remaining days before execution in the Benton jail, his followers have scattered, have been either taken into custody of the law or are sought by it.

But Birger cares not so much as a snap of his fingers. "They were a bunch of punks," he says, "this man with a noose about his throat. They came to me ignorant, uneducated low-bred scum."

Birger, a slender slip of a man, 41 years old, and endowed with a magnetic personality, has come to the end of his rope. He has come as far as he can. He has discovered that the law is bigger than any man, and those that remain after him will laugh at his folly rather than grieve his daring.

Birger will be hanged Oct. 20. Birger was born in or near the city of New York, and came to St. Louis growing to manhood there. He moved in the United States early during the Spanish-American war, and is a pensioner of the United States government.

His name first came into prominence in southern Illinois when he shot it out with "Whitey" Doering.

a St. Louis gangster, at a joint in Halfway, Williamson county. Doering died, but Birger recovered.

Rival gangsters drove many to the protecting portals of Birger's cabin, and each new day saw some new face within the circle of men who banded themselves together by a code of the underworld.

The daily and nightly parades of armored cars, bearing killers armed with the most modern implements of warfare, led through a half dozen southern Illinois counties. Pillaging, burning, robbing, looting, killing, the gang war went on, gaining in power and activity a new red-hot stage for the heroes of "Little Egypt" for each new day.

The biscuit and the ad

THERE'S a blank sheet of paper lying white on the window sill. A can of baking powder rests on it, and a white, fluffy pinch of the powder itself. Taste it. It seems good. Yet you'd have to consult your chemist to make sure it is good. And have to mix that powder with flour, milk, eggs—make biscuits, cakes with it—to make sure how good it is. Then keep it a month, try it again, to make sure it continues good.

Yet if that sheet of paper were an advertisement about baking powder—you'd see a name that stands for quality and purity. You'd read about the fluffy cakes and biscuits that that powder makes—and will continue to make. You'd know more about that powder than if you held the can in your hand.

Advertisements are short-cuts to finding out truths. The truths about everything you want to buy. The names in advertisements are names of solid reputation. The labels in advertisements are symbols of satisfaction. It pays to read the advertisements, for then you know what is good. The products they tell about are being bought, tested constantly. The fact that they're still being advertised is alone proof of their worth.

An easy, frequent glancing over these advertising columns is better than fallen biscuits, soggy cakes—and other failure buys. If you know what's advertised, you can buy always what's good.

The Rev. Mr. Hummer has written a comprehensive history of the beginnings and growth of Grace Lutheran church, which has been incorporated in a jubilee program. This history follows:

"Fifty years ago Grace Lutheran church was organized and the church building was dedicated. E. J. Metzler was the pastor. The ground on which the church stands with the cemetery and parking ground was purchased from David Wilson. The deed for the above property was conveyed to the trustees of the congregation. The building committee was: —Emmanuel Rudisill, Baltzer Snyder, A. J. Schwartz, David Wilson, Michael and Samuel Schwartz. The charter members who entered into the organization were 60, 50 of whom were dismissed from St. Luke's Lutheran church near White Hall, 6 from St. John's Lutheran church near Littlestown, and 4 from Mt. Joy Lutheran congregation. An election was held on November 30, 1877, for Elders, Deacons and Trustees, with the following elections: —Emmanuel Rudisill, John Weigle, elders; James Shanbrook, Samuel Schwartz, Levi Wilson and James Lane, deacons; John May and George Sherman, trustees. The first communion of the new organization was held on December 12, 1877, when 71 communicants are recorded as having partaken of the Lord's Supper. The first class of catechumens was confirmed on this day and received into the fellowship of the congregation. They were Levi Miller, Franklin Rudisill, James H. Sherman, Martin C. Carl, Samuel H. Sentz, Dallas C. Harner, Mary A. Deane, Sarah E. Sherman, Alverta Rudisill, Lizzie A. Snyder, Mary Sentz, Susan A. May, Lydia Shanbrook, Sarah E. Wilson, Mary A. Carl. Total, 16. At the end of the Rev. Mr. Metzler's pastorate the congregation numbered 210.

"The Rev. D. R. Becker succeeded the Rev. Mr. Metzler. He continued to serve as pastor until September, 1892. The Rev. Mr. Becker was an earnest and faithful pastor. He kept his church record in a very neat and accurate way.

"The Rev. Mr. Becker was succeeded by the Rev. W. C. Wire, who took charge March 21, 1893. He died very suddenly April 20, 1897, after a pastorate of four years and one month. The Rev. Mr. Wire was a very good preacher and an active pastor. The congregation prospered under his care.

"The Rev. Mr. Wire was followed by the Rev. L. A. Mann, D. D., October 1, 1897. This brother's work is still very highly spoken of by the members of St. John's. He did most of his pastoral by riding from place to place on his white horse. It was during his pastorate that the Quarto Centennial of the congregation was observed. He also remodeled the church and a new carpet was put on the floor.

"The Rev. C. P. Bastian followed the Rev. L. A. Mann, D. D., in the spring of 1903 and remained in the charge until 1907 during which time the Sunday school room was built and new furniture placed in the church. A balance of this good work was paid for during the Rev. Carl Mumford's pastorate. The Rev. Mr. Bastian resigned the pastorate March, 1907.

"In June 23, 1907, the Rev. Carl Mumford began his ministerial duties as pastor of Grace church. It was during this pastorate of three years and three months that the church was freed of debt and started on the way to future prosperity. The Rev. Mr. Mumford resigned October 9, 1910.

"The Rev. I. M. Lau began his ministry at Grace church January 1, 1911.

Skin Break Out?

Try the thing that really works—that actually clears up the skin and leaves it smooth and white. Sulphur in combination with menthol does it! The germ destroying action of sulphur clears the skin, while menthol heals the sore and broken tissue. Twofold action for perfect results! Pimples, blackheads, acne—even fiery eczema—positively yields. Prove it free!

During the 10 years and 7 months of this pastorate many improvements were made. A new carpet was placed in the Sunday school room, a new fence placed in front of the cemetery, an addition purchased to cemetery, the entire building roofed, a piano bought for the church, a steam heating plant installed, Duplex envelopes introduced, Ladies' Aid society organized and an electric lighting plant installed. The Rev. Mr. Lau resigned August 18, 1921.

"The Rev. G. H. Eveler began his ministry on March 1, 1922. During the Rev. Mr. Eveler's pastorate the entire church was renovated. Painted outside and frescoed on the inside. Pulpit platform made larger, choir loft changed to north side of the church, the entire church carpeted, all expenses provided for on the day of re-opening. The Rev. Mr. Eveler resigned January 15, 1925.

"The Rev. J. I. Hummer started his work at Grace church March 20, 1925. The church was rededicated on May 3, 1925. The pastor preached the sermon and rededicated the church. The light plant was sold and we are now connected with power that passes the church. Very recently new pulpit furniture has been installed. During the fifty years there has been a steady development along all lines and we pray God's continued blessing to rest upon and abide with each member now, and in the future. In order to achieve the greatest possible spiritual success in the future every member should give the Lord Jesus right of way in their hearts; if this is done the next fifty years will bring even greater results than the last have. This is the prayer and wish of your pastor."

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of dear Vera May Cease, who fell asleep in Jesus, November 18, 1925. Two sad years have passed and gone. Since you have left our home, I know you are sweetly playing Around the great white throne.

Sometimes I think it cannot be. You could no longer stay. You came but for a little while. And then were called away.

You were too sweet to live. The Saviour thought it best To take our baby from us. That we so much caressed.

Some may think I have forgotten. But little do they know Of the sorrow and the heartaches And the tears which unbidden flow.

Sleep on, dear Vera, and take your rest. Your suffering now is o'er. Oh, may we meet some day again. Where suffering and sorrow are unknown.

By Your Loving Mother,
Mrs. Joshua Cease.

Things To Interest Students At Higher Institution of Learning.

By G. K. N.

Notice was received on Monday night by Athletic Director C. E. Bilheimer from Georgetown university cancelling the football game that was to have been played at Washington, D. C., next Saturday between Georgetown Freshman and Gettysburg Freshman teams. The Little Bull's thus ended their season last Saturday by defeating F. and M. Freshmen.

The Historical Association will hold its first meeting of the year on the evening of November 21, at seven o'clock, at the home of Dr. Fortenbaugh, professor of history. Dr. A. R. Wentz, well-known historian, will address the meeting on the subject, "Historical Research Concerning Habits, Customs, Manners of the Pennsylvania Germans."

The Historical Association was organized several years ago to promote interest in historical research. The association meets three times a year, during the months of November, February and May. All history majors automatically become active members of the association and others taking history courses but not majors become associate members. Money collected from dues is used to buy books for collateral reading. A fine collection of historical books has been purchased with this fund and placed in the library.

In the few years since its organization, the association has progressed rapidly and has been of great value to those interested in history. All history majors and others taking history courses are requested to be present at the meeting on November 21. The talk by Dr. Wentz promises to be of much value and interest to the members of the association.

With the close of classes next Wednesday, at noon, there will be many joyful visions in the minds of the students, for then the Thanksgiving recess begins. Most of the students are planning to spend the vacation at their homes, while others who live at greater distances will not go home until the Christmas recess. On Saturday, December 17, the Christmas vacation begins and will continue until Tuesday, January 3, 1928. With only 24 more days of school intervening between now and the first of next year the prospects for many a Merry Christmas seem bright.

The annual Sophomore-Freshman football clash will take place tomorrow on the college field. Both teams have been holding practices daily, under the directions of Swartz, for the Sophomores, and Hubicksk, for the Freshman. Each camp has been making secret preparations for the contest, which should prove to be an exciting one, until the final whistle ends hostilities.

NEW OXFORD

New Oxford.—Mrs. James Weaver, Hanover street, entertained a number of women at her home Wednesday evening.

The Rev. Dr. H. D. Hoover, of the Lutheran theological seminary, Gettysburg, will deliver the sermon here on Sunday afternoon in St. Paul's Reformed church.

Mrs. Charles Rinehart spent Wednesday in Hanover.
